

YourProgram coaching platform: what to test

Thanks for testing! This is a coaching platform built by two brothers who run a CrossFit gym and an online coaching business in the Netherlands. It replaces CoachRx and Strivee for us and we're now opening it up to other coaches. You're the first coach outside our own company to use it, so everything you notice is useful, from a broken button to "this is not how I'd want to work".

The platform has two halves: the coach dashboard in your browser (what you'll test now) and the athlete app on the phone (iOS via TestFlight; we'll send you an invite for that in a second round).

Getting started (5 minutes)

1. Go to <https://coachapp-steel.vercel.app> on your computer (Chrome, Edge or Safari).
2. Click English under the login card, then Create account. Use your normal email address and pick a password.
3. Confirm your email (check spam if it doesn't arrive within a minute), then log in.
4. You'll see a choice screen. Pick "I'm a coach and I'm starting my own workspace", enter the name of your gym or business and click Start my workspace.

That's it: you now own a completely separate workspace. Nobody else can see your clients or programming, and you can't see ours.

What to try, in this order

Take the tour in roughly this order; each step builds on the previous one. The question mark at the top right opens the manual (screenshots are still Dutch, the text is English).

1. Your first client

Clients → + Add client. Use one of your own spare email addresses (Gmail trick: `yourname+test1@gmail.com` lands in your own inbox). You'll get the invitation email that your clients would get. Check the tone and the three steps in it.

2. Programming (the heart of the dashboard)

Open the client, click a day in the calendar and build a workout:

- Type an exercise name (e.g. Back Squat). The video library searches along and links a demo video automatically.
- Write the prescription in plain text (sets, reps, tempo, rest), pick a block colour, add a conditioning block, add a whole template.
- Click away from the builder: it saves automatically.
- Drag a workout to another day, copy it, duplicate a block, paste a block into another client's day.
- Try the Day / Week / Month views and scroll up and down through the months.

Questions for you: is this faster or slower than what you use now? What's missing before you'd program a real week in it?

3. Library and multi-week programs

Library → exercises, warm-ups, workouts, cool-downs, benchmarks and Programs. Build a small 2-week program, then assign it to your test client with a start date. Check the calendar.

4. Messages, comments and the activity feed

Messages is the 1-on-1 chat with a client (photos and videos work too). Comments live on a workout day. The Dashboard tab shows what your clients logged. You'll see this properly once you have the athlete app, but the coach side is testable now.

5. Blog program and the Showdown

Blog → + Add program: a shared program that any number of followers train on, each workout with its own leaderboard (Rx/Scaled, time cap with capped scores). Turn on Sign-up link and open the link in a private window to see how a follower joins for free. The YP Showdown tab is our weekly community workout with a leaderboard; ignore the name, it's the same mechanism.

6. Settings

Top right, your avatar → Settings: profile photo, bio, your gym's logo and brand colour (the app and emails follow it), notifications, consultation link. Language switching is the flag next to your avatar.

Known limitations right now

- Some sentences may read oddly. The interface was translated from Dutch with a fixed glossary (client, member, block, program), not by a native speaker. Please flag anything that sounds wrong; every fix is a one-line change.
- Manual screenshots are Dutch. Text around them is English.
- The public shop page (selling blog programs with Stripe) is Dutch and in test mode. Not relevant for this round.
- The athlete app is not available to you yet. You'll get a TestFlight invite in round two; then your test client can log workouts, chat and use the leaderboard on the phone.
- Everything is in kilograms and European date format (dd-mm-yyyy). Tell us if pounds matter for your clients.

How to give feedback

- Screenshots are gold. WhatsApp or email them to Stefan with one line of context.
- Inside the dashboard: question mark → Report an issue lets you send a bug, idea or question straight from the screen you're on. It lands in our inbox with the screen name attached.
- Don't hold back on the "this is how I'd expect it to work" comments. That's exactly the kind of feedback we can't get from our own team.

What we'd love to hear from you specifically

1. Could you run your coaching business on this, and what are the three things that stop you today?
2. Where did you get lost, even for a moment?
3. What do CoachRx, TrueCoach or Strivee do better, and what does this do better?
4. Anything that looks unprofessional or unfinished to a UK coach's eye.

Thanks again. Take your time; there's no deadline on this.